CONVERSATION

Listen to the conversation. What would Wendy like to be?

Father: So, Wendy, you're 18 years old today. What are you going to do with your life?

Wendy: Well, I'd like to get married and have children.

Father: Whoa! Not so quick!

Wendy: Only joking! I'd like to be a lawyer. I'd like to study law and become a lawyer.

Real Language

We can say Only joking to show we are not serious.

Life's Milestones

In some Central American and Caribbean countries, a girl's 15th birthday is very important.

Here, Elsa Mendoza prepares her niece, Annalien, for her 15th-birthday photographs.

Annalien would like to study photography in Havana. Her aunt told her that she has to finish school first. "She's not ready to go to the big city yet."

Life's Milestones

Zanelle is an Ndebele from South Africa. Today is her big day. She is going to get married. However, she is not truly married until she has her first child. She says, "I would like to have a lot of children. But most of all, I would like to be happy."

Life's Milestones

This is William and Enid Till. They are from Canada. Today is their golden wedding anniversary. They got married 50 years ago. What are they going to do on this special day? They are going to have a meal with their family and friends. And then they are going to have an early night!

Are they going to go to bed late?
